CCBS – Center for Contemporary Buddhist Studies

Are you interested in research and research dissemination? Are you highly proficient in English?

CCBS – Center for Contemporary Buddhist Studies at the University of Copenhagen is seeking an intern for the Spring term (January/February to June) who is highly proficient in English, works in a well-structured manner, has an eye for detail, is a good communicator and a great organiser.

ABOUT US: Center for Contemporary Buddhist Studies is located in the Department of Cross-Cultural and Regional Studies at the University of Copenhagen. CCBS was established to concentrate and pool resources and expertise, creating a global center of excellence and raising the international profile of Contemporary Buddhist Studies. We work with our affiliated scholars and stakeholders to produce a body of original research on Contemporary Buddhism, disseminated through scholarly meetings, teaching and learning activities, public outreach – and academic publications.

TASKS: The intern will work closely together with the CCBS-team to support our research dissemination and outreach. Possible work tasks include:

- E-mail communication with researchers, lecturers and other stakeholders
- Maintain an active social media platform
- Webpage management (familiarity with Word Press is an advantage)
- Design and produce posters for outreach activities (familiarity with GIMP or the like is an advantage)
- Help organize talks, seminars, conferences and workshops
- Support the development of a podcast series
- In general, support the research dissemination and outreach activities of CCBS

HOW TO APPLY: If you are interested, send a motivated email to ccbs @ hum.ku.dk

Find us on
Twitter @ CCBS_studies
Facebook https://www.facebook.com/groups/853592954759490/
Blog https://centerforcontemporarybuddhiststudies.wordpress.com/
Website http://ccrs. ku.dk/research/projects/buddhism-business-and-believers/